

Robert Jackson

Rob completed two year-long deployments to Iraq within five years of active duty service and two years in the Army Reserves (Tulsa) as the Brigade Headquarters Company Commander before ending his time of uniformed service as a Captain.

In addition to his normal duties at Mountaineer Keystone, Rob also consults on sourcing top military talent into the organization.

Rob recently completed the first of many recreational fundraising events planned by his non-profit to support the healthy reintegration of wounded Veterans into society by summiting Mount Kilimanjaro, the tallest free standing mountain and the fourth tallest peak in the world.

Rob received a BS in Electrical Engineering from the United States Military Academy at West Point and an MBA at Pennsylvania State University.
